

DAY 7 OF 7

Showcase Your Portfolio

A recruiter or hiring manager looking at your GitHub profile decides what they think of you in about 30 seconds. Today is about making those 30 seconds count — pinning your best work, writing a profile README, and cleaning up anything that looks unfinished.

DAY 7 OF 7

Showcase Your Portfolio

★ WHY THIS MATTERS

A recruiter or hiring manager looking at your GitHub profile decides what they think of you in about 30 seconds. Today is about making those 30 seconds count — pinning your best work, writing a profile README, and cleaning up anything that looks unfinished.

WHAT YOU'LL DO

- Create a GitHub profile README (the special repo that shows up on your profile page)
- Pin your 3–6 best repositories
- Do a final pass: clear README files, sensible repo names, no "test" or "asdf" repositories left pinned

THE PROFILE README REPO

create a repo named EXACTLY your username → it shows on your profile
$ git clone https://github.com/you/you.git
$ git add README.md
$ git commit -m "Add profile README"
$ git push origin main

Day 7 Checkpoint

Share your finished GitHub profile link — this is the one you'll actually put on your resume.
